Located in downtown Henderson, McGregor Hall offers a central location for anyone interested in the arts. This $9 million theatre is housed in the same building as the Perry Memorial Library, separated by a 20,000 square-foot multipurpose Gallery.

The Jeanne S. Pearson Educational Series, named after a local 35-year veteran teacher, is offered to schools each year in the surrounding seven counties. This has been beneficial to the school systems since tickets are reasonably priced and transportation costs are minimal. The 2020-2021 Jeanne S. Pearson Educational Series will present the North Carolina Symphony and Willy Wonka. Since opening, McGregor Hall has hosted over 20,000 students from Vance, Granville, Warren, Mecklenburg (VA),

According to the 2019 Economic Impact Study of McGregor Hall conducted by the Municipal Research Lab at NC State University, the theatre injected $2.3 million into Henderson's economy in a 12-month period. This amount represents new spending from non-resident visitors that would not have occurred without the McGregor Hall was designed by Szostak and Associates, the same architect that designed the Durham Performing Arts Center. We are proud of our 923-seat facility, the first to bring professional-quality rigging and technical capacities

We are the only performing arts center with over 500 seats in the state of North Carolina that operates without any sustaining support from municipal government, county government, a higher education institution, or a combination thereof. We exist through ticket sales, generous individual contributions, and the amazing support from our local business community.

In the spring of 2019, McGregor Hall hosted nine dance competitions and two dance recitals, bringing a total of 17,000 people to downtown Henderson. To date, we have scheduled nine weekend-long regional dance competitions and three major weekend-long dance recitals for the spring of 2022.

From educational presentations to banquets and more, the facility offers a stunning backdrop to enhance any occasion. Both the gallery and the theater are available for

McGregor Hall annually produces a spring children's theater production, a children's summer theater camp, and partners with Vance County Schools to present Arts Alive!, a showcase of student talent from among their schools.
